DOGFIGHT SURVIVAL

BY MICHAEL J. HARRIS

It was a routine mission for John Landers, a P-40 pilot, when he was shot down over the Pacific Ocean in 1942. The plane was hit by enemy fire, and he was forced to bail out. He landed on a small island, and was captured by the Japanese. He was held in a prison camp for several years, and was eventually released. He returned to the United States, and continued to fly for the military. He was a highly skilled pilot, and was known for his courage and bravery. He was a hero to many, and his story is a testament to the spirit of the American pilot.

When a disaster strikes, the first thing you want to do is get your family out of the area. But what if you're stuck in a car? What if you're stuck in a car with a broken-down engine? What if you're stuck in a car with a broken-down engine? What if you're stuck in a car with a broken-down engine?
